World Wide Web

Only 4% of the content on the internet is www., which includes public websites such as Google, eBay, etc.

Deep Web

Over 90% of the information on the internet is in the deep web and is not accessible by surface web crawlers. However, it doesn't mean that they're dark web areas – they're just one layer removed from the public web that's searchable through search engines.

Dark Web

The dark web consists of websites that use public internet, but require specific software for access and is not indexed by search engines to ensure anonymity. The stolen data is traded, sold and used for financial, political or personal gain.
